So, what's good about reading ?

Reading is fun: From the first experience of chanting nursery rhymes, laughing at strange-sounding words, and turning pages with an adult ,,reading offers a life-long pleasure.

Reading makes you feel good: It enhances health and wellbeing.

It can be relaxing and stress busting. It can take you out of yourself and away from life's pressures.

I Love my books

Reading connects to each other: It can help you see other points of view; it connects you to wider worlds and ideas.

Reading is a creative act: Readers use their own imaginations to bring the writer's text alive. Because reading fires the imagination.

It can inspire one to produce his/her own creative work.

Reading helps you make sense of yourself: It gives you different perspectives on life, and can help you understand yourself better.

MESSAGE FROM A TEACHER TO THE TEACHERS...

We are gifted with soft palms,
to hold their hand when they fall.
We are blessed with patience,
to listen to their mild voice.
We are affectionate and loving,
to make the innocent eyes smile.
We are the footprints in the marble,
to guide the generations to come.
We are the stepping stones,

to get them touch the sky.
We are blessed as 'experienced',
to help them overcome their obstacles.
We are the ocean of nobility,
to give pearl like humans to the world.
We are greeted as 'Respected Teachers', to acknowledge our contribution in shaping the future of our Nation.

Book of the Month: "A long way gone" by Ishmael Beah

A LONG WAY GONE "A long way gone" by Ishmael Beah is an extraordinary memoir which gives a first hand report of the hardships and desolate situations faced by people and countries during war. Ishmael Beah is a graduate from Oberlin College and a member of the Human rights watch children's rights division and advisory committee of U.S.A. He emerges as a gifted writer by reporting his life in a clear eyed and liberate fashion and will surely haunt the reader for some time. Among the different war stories which are published, this one stands out as a best-seller because of its simplicity and transparency as seen and experienced by the author. It is a first hand information and gives an idea to the reader of the problems faced by the civilians, the army and the rebels during any war like situation.

In this story, the author is a 12 year old boy living happily with his close knit family in a place called Mattru Jong. He and his gang of friends, enjoyed school like any one of us and played rap music as pastime. The only exposure to war for them was movies. Suddenly their lives are torn apart by a group of rebels who attack unannounced and the whole family is separated. Initially the author stays with his brother whom he later loses as they move from village to village in search of safety. The book vividly describes the impact on the young minds as they see families blown apart and the sufferings of those left behind.. It also gives a vivid description of the life of refugees who are ill treated and bribed by the nation's own army
